REV:05/1997

The Rhode Island Family Independence Assistance Act (RIGL 40-5.1 et seq.) establishes the legal basis for a public financial program to assist needy families and is the law through which the Federal assistance programs, Temporary Assistance for Needy Families and Medical Assistance, are available to families in Rhode Island who meet program eligibility criteria. The Department of Human Services is charged with the responsibility of setting forth the eligibility requirements established in law to meet the needs of those persons determined eligible.

0800.10                PURPOSE

REV:05/1997

The purpose of the Department of Human Services (referred to as "the Agency") is to provide financial and medical assistance to eligible individuals and families.

The assistance programs are administered in a manner consistent with the objectives of the programs and respect the rights, privacy, and personal dignity of the individual. All applicants and recipients, without regard to race, color, national origin, disability, or sex, have a right to apply, to confidentiality, to equitable and courteous treatment, to self determination, to receive the proper form of assistance, to receive, if eligible, an accurate unrestricted money payment and to an adjustment conference, and/or to a Fair Hearing.

An application consisting of the Application for Assistance - Part I (DHS-1) and the Statement of Need (DHS-2), completed by the applicant and filed with the Agency, is used to apply for assistance and initiates the application process. An interview with the applicant to review these forms is required. The applicant is also required to document the information so that the Agency can determine the applicant's eligibility or ineligibility. That determination encompasses all factors of eligibility, as set forth in the law and policy of the Agency, and includes a full exploration and computation of resources which can be made available to each person or family.
