High Lead Levels

Rep. Eileen Naughton

Key issues: Old infrastructure system, Providence water system is old, and in the process of adding chemical (Toxic algae) to prevent lead to go into the water is a home owners and water company problem. Lead poisoning is 100% preventable, and we can start in Early Intervention with follow up on lead screening, family advocacy, WIC and home visiting programs. This prevents behavior problem, control on prison numbers and more healthy babies and families. If a household has lead pipes and don't have funding or means, we offer to change the system and prevent what happened in Flint, Michigan; exposed to lead contamination from the city's water supply.

Deborah Masland/Brenda DuHamel: Any child can be referred to EI for a full developmental evaluation. Children are eligible if they have a high lead level of 15 mcg, have a significant developmental delay, or are experiencing a significant impact in functioning. Services are based on individual child and family needs, not diagnosis or reason for delay. Services and supports are coordinated with other resources, such as pediatricians, lead centers, early care and education, etc.

Child Welfare (CAPTA)

Darlene Magaw

DCYF/Family Visiting Coordination Pilot: CCA First Connection put out 12 calls to DCYF (after release was in place) and received 3 return calls. This is small improvement over last month. SHRI reports more timely follow up as EI service coordinators moving more quickly to involving DCYF supervisors.

Questions about this data include determining number of call backs for children in foster care vs. those at home with biological family and if the timeliness of the call back is influenced by whether it is a request for information or for help getting in to see the child.

Consent for referrals: Discussed Pam High concern that issues around obtaining consent are causing great delays in services.

NAS Task Force: Meeting with several members of the workgroup. The subgroups are at work on specific tasks.

CAPTA Policy Update: Joe Carr continues to push forward with approval, despite the challenges presented by the transition leadership within DCYF. Working with Kevin Aucoin to use MA as possible model. This would mean advisement to families that a referral will be made (minimal information shared) but they can still decline services when First Connections calls. To clarify that 003 will still be in place for those children in foster care and EI will be able to proceed through evaluation without additional consents. However, cannot move forward with training until policy is confirmed, it may happen by September.

Kids Count to be part of an interagency Data project: The project and the data they hope to gather with the help of Data Spark related to the birth to six populations of maltreated children. They want to gather information about how many children are involved in a variety of family visiting/early childhood programs. Other data available through KidsNet may be included (eg. Immunizations, WIC). They will look at referrals made vs. number of families engaged over a year. Hoping data will be gathered by December so report can be issued in the spring. Report to be separate from the annual Kids Count Factbook.

Next Meeting: August 2, 2016 @ 1pm. Seven Hills. 178 Norwood Ave, Cranston, RI 02905.
